ROUTEONE PROVIDES INTEGRATION WITH TELEDATA COMMUNICATIONS, INC. (TCI)

MSU Credit Union, Mid-Missouri Credit Union first to integrate using TCI's DecisionLender

FARMINGTON HILLS, Mich., April 28, 2006 – RouteOne LLC announced today that Teledata Communications, Inc. (TCI) has integrated with its auto portal credit application. MSU Federal Credit Union and Mid-Missouri Credit Union are the first to integrate to RouteOne using TCI's DecisionLender, an ASP-based loan origination solution for financial institutions.

Hauppauge, New York-based TCI features web-based loan origination and decisioning solutions. TCI has approximately 3,800 clients utilizing its web-based solutions.

RouteOne, a collaborative effort by DaimlerChrysler Financial Services, Ford Motor Credit Company, General Motors Acceptance Corporation, and Toyota Financial Services, provides a single point of access for dealer credit applications to some of the largest auto lenders and banks in North America. RouteOne's web-based system offers dealers the opportunity to exchange credit application and credit decisions in near-real time.

"We are pleased to offer our customers the efficiencies provided by RouteOne," said Bill Nass, president of TCI. "DecisionLender is an affordable, fully-featured, Internet-based loan origination solution that provides small and mid-size lenders with the tools that they need to compete in an Internet-based lending environment."

"We are committed to providing our dealers and finance sources a wide variety of choices in their quest to finance automotive loans," said Mike Jurecki, RouteOne CEO. "We welcome the addition of TCI to our system."

About RouteOne

RouteOne was formed in 2002 to create a more streamlined credit application process for automobile dealers and their customers. Jointly owned by DaimlerChrysler Financial Services, Ford Motor Credit Company, General Motors Acceptance Corporation, and Toyota Financial Services, RouteOne also provides a single point of access for dealer credit applications to some of the largest auto lenders and banks in North America. RouteOne offers dealers a common platform for submitting credit application information to the multiple finance sources with which they do business. Automotive dealers and their finance sources can exchange credit application and credit decisions in near real-time using RouteOne's web-based network.
